Project

Home Type: Terrace house
Lot size: 198 sq metre
Budget: $350,000

Designer's dexterity

- Injects new translations into original intentions, creating spaces that breathe of personality and practicality
- Believes that a good design is one that marries creativity with reality

Creating a modern style that defies convention, Intent's Jeffrey Lin intentionally created a living space that blends cool cosmopolitan charm and timeless elegance stylishly together to suit his client's unconventional taste. Meticulous attention given to every stage of project development ensured exceptional quality that is befitting of such stunning interior.

Floating on air

Natural light floods the premise through the towering windows entwining with the vast space that soars with the space's high ceiling, lending an out-of-the-world quality to the house. Soft fabrics, strong lines and modern elements are juxtaposed against the purity of Barley White that fills up the interior's walls, exuding graceful charm and exquisite style. The water path that acts as a divider between the living and dining area exudes calming vibes that echoes the homeowners' desire for a comforting sanctuary.

Modern grace

While contemporary materials and structured forms were mainly used in the decor, the harsh linearity of the space is softened with the clever use of plush fabrics, flowing elements and mood lighting. An appealing ambience of timeless grace and urban panache is evoked in the space, creating a thrilling multi-sensorial experience for the homeowners.

An underwater dream

Making known that blue was his favourite colour during the consultancy stage, Jeffrey addressed the homeowner's taste by incorporating hints of the hue into his master bedroom. Almost like an enthralling underwater dream, curvy lines were embossed into the pale white of the room's ceiling and walls. The entire floor was wrapped in plush blue carpeting that entices with its soft texture and adds a startlingly whimsy charm to the serene space. Despite the extensive use of whites, the room gently emanates an atmosphere of pure pleasure that allows the tired soul to rejuvenate.

Project

Home Type: Shophouse
Lot size: 92 sq metre
Budget: $100,000

Designer's dexterity

- Playing around boundaries untouched by many to create homes with a strong presence and personality
- Always something different to anticipate because change is their inspiration
- Diversity and unconventionality drives their design direction

Unconventionality drives Raymond Seow of Free Space to achieve bold designs that are themed with unexpected twists. Young and dynamic, the homeowners of this shophouse wanted a space designed around their outgoing personalities. With Raymond, they managed to attain an abode that makes a statement with its daring decor.

Strong space

During the consultation held between homeowners and designer, it was voiced out that the living space was to retain its original rugged appeal. Slabs of concrete give off a harsh vibe in the strong space so Raymond nimbly played down its overwhelming quality with the blushing radiance of Lilac Lace. A plush couch of a subdued hue coupled with the circular glass table offsets the strength of the living space, while several posters that covered the large walls add character to the premise.

Suspended in air

Suspended lighting draws the eyes to the ceilings, allowing an appreciation of bold, radical design while taking in the vast space above due to the house's high ceilings. Almost like a starlit canopy, the unexpected addition lends an original and arty vibe to the space, enhancing the understated flair of the abode. The workspace excites and inspires with its striking shade of Desert Orange. While its citrus hue brightens and enlivens the space, it doesn't overwhelm as the decor is kept simple and clutter-free.

Space age chic

Cooking in one of these spaces, would be akin to stepping in a spaceship. An extremely radical space, the kitchen's ceiling and walls are completely encased in circular space age patterns, conjuring a pleasurable feast for the senses. In order to enhance the futuristic appeal, storage was created to store kitchen essentials and to avoid clutter in the premise. Globular lights hang discreetly on the wall to brighten up the spacious area.
